Burden Bearing

Rather than acting in a divisive or unconcerned manner, Christians should seek to encourage and help one another. Although help should be given to those who are in physical need (Galatians 6:10; 1 Timothy 5:16; 1 John 3:17), Paul began the section by emphasizing the necessity of helping those who struggle spiritually. He declared, “Brethren, if a man is overtaken in any trespass, you who are spiritual restore such a one in spirit of gentleness, considering yourself lest you also be tempted” (Galatians 6:1). His words are challenging for several reasons.

First, they challenge us to know our brethren and be aware when they yield to temptation (cf. 1 John 5:16). Otherwise, we could not presume to reach out to them with assistance.

Second, they challenge us to know what is acceptable to God and, conversely, what is unacceptable (cf. Ephesians 5:17).

Third, they challenge us to make sure we are living properly before we approach those who are not (cf. Matthew 7:5; 2 Corinthians 7:1).

And finally, Paul’s words challenge us to reach out to our fallen brethren in an appropriate manner (cf. Proverbs 15:1-2) Importantly, when we show concern for our brethren, as Paul instructed, we help others carry their burden (Galatians 6:2) Douglas J Moo explained, “Bringing back into the fellowship of Christ a brother or sister who has strayed will often mean entering into their lives with empathy and concern to take on ourselves whatever of their own sorrows and difficulties that we can” (Galatians, 376). By doing so, we “fulfill the law of Christ” (Galatians 6:2)

This law, of course, stands in contrast to the law of Moses. It is the same law Paul mentioned in Romans 8:2 when he wrote, “For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus has made me free from the law of sin and death.” Those who focus their attention solely on themselves make a grave mistake. So Paul warned, For if anyone thinks himself to be something, when he is nothing, he deceives himself” (Galatians 6:3; cf. Romans 12:3 Philippians 2:3-4). Instead, we should consider those around us. When we focus on and love our brethren (cf Galatians 5:14), we follow both the teaching and the example of Jesus (Matthew 7:12; 22:39; John 13:34-35; 15:13).
