Handling of A Crisis

Crisis is defined as the turning point for better or worse, an emotionally significant event, a crucial time. We all experience various crises in life, physical problems, business situations, but in all probability the greatest crises occur in our family relations, and in marriage itself.

When problems arrive within the family or marriage, there is a strong tendency to blame the other party or someone else rather than self. Passing the buck, so to speak will not alleviate the crisis. There needs to be an examination of self, and a mutual confession of wrong, and each party pray for the other.

The crisis could well be test of our fidelity and love. Trials do test our faith. Tribulations, though unwanted, prompts a closer walk with God.

In seeking God's help – we will petition wisdom with counsel, and by so doing receive the gift of patience in dealing with trial.

Many times, the crisis in our life serves in very forceful way to point us to our greatest need in life, and that is a proper relationship with Jesus Christ. This is the ultimate blessing because as Paul stated, "I can do all things through Christ." After all, didn't Jesus say that the reason he came into this world, was that we could know the truth, the way, and the life.

Therefore, in any crisis, remember as a child of God, you have the intercession of Christ who tells us to cast all our cares upon Him. Christ is the answer, is no idle statement when it comes to dealing with critical situations that we deal with in life.
